

stefan vetter

Muller-Thurgau Steinterrassen | Franken, Germany

things of note

The absolutely remarkable wines of Stefan Vetter are like no other in the world. Vetter has near single-handedly brought attention to a grapes that has been long overlooked. Along with producing incredibly elegant, yet fresh and rebellious versions of Sylvaner and Müller-Thurgau, he likes to harvest substantially earlier than his contemporaries in the region to maintain the grapes' acidity and to keep the alcohol level low.

spec & tech

varietal: Müller-Thurgau, single vineyard

region: Franken, Germany

soils: limestone, sandstone farming: organic/biodynamic, manual harvesting vinification: pressed as a whole cluster, fermented spontaneously in used wooden barrels and bottled unfiltered without any treatment or fining agents, no added sulphites

ABV: 9.5%

cellar: 5-6 years

tasty notes

Straightforward, juicy, taut and bone-dry! A delicate nose of citrus, green apple and a subtle floral touch, as well as subtle ripe fruit and a lot of freshness, very lively and agile. On the palate, the wine also shows a lot of finesse and the fine Müller appears almost sinewy and with very lively juiciness, slim and light-footed, again citrus and some rose petals, remains straightforward and rather subtle in its expression.

any questions?

email me
caitlinferguson@gmail.com

bbi